

From: Dan Twomey

To: smacanb

Sent: Monday, March 20, 2006 10:54 PM

Subject: comments

Sean

I have the following comments to make I think there should be a guide line price on this green energy. The bid system should be made as simple as possible if it is going to be a bid system. Small operators like me are not going to be able to survive with the bigger players in the market place. When I was working out my price for top up I was led to believe that it would cost about €45-€50 a MW. Green energy should be made available to persons that are in the market place and are totally green producers of power.

My hydro is seasonal with rainfall and I need to know what my top up is going to cost.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

Dan Twomey .