

John O'Mahony Response to CER11077

Hi David.

After reading the consultation paper, I have come to the conclusion that the broad definition approach, is by far the best option. In both clarity of those qualified to carry out the works and the lack of grey areas, such as limiting those that may legally be approved to carry out said restricted works. It is also the optimum method of maintaining and enforcing standards and regulations. Also there can be a proper paper trail, through issued completion certs and therefore accountability. I hope my observations are worthy considerations for your final decision.

Yours sincerely,
John O'Mahony
Electrical Contractor