We are a family of six adults and one under eighteen year child. Of the six adults,two are in college and one is Autistic and has no concept of water conservation.

It will be impossible for us to pay our water charges under the proposed current format.It will be far in excess of the average 250 euros that has been given as a general guideline for families.

No provision has been made for families like us.30,000 litres per household is totally inadequate.At the very least that figure should be per person and not per household.

If the government are in earnest that no family pays no more than 250 euros perhaps they should consider an annual charge instead of installing water meters.

Provision should also be made for families who have members with a disability.
